During an episode of her popular podcast show ‘Brandi Glanville Unfiltered,’ the former Real Housewives of Orange County cast member Brandi Glanville dropped some major truth bombs about her divorce from actor Eddie Cibrian.

During the episode, Glanville interviewed divorce attorney Dror Bikel and picked his brain about the practices of divorce attorneys and couples who are splitting. She started off by revealing that when she had first started her divorce proceedings, her ex husband had called every top attorney in the area and taken meetings with them in order to prevent them from accepting her on as a client because it would be considered a conflict of interest.

Bikel was quick to brand that as a “sleazy thing to do”. By now, many of you are probably aware of the reason Cibrian and Glanville’s relationship came to an end. Cibrian had been caught having an affair with country star singer LeAnn Rimes who he then went on to marry.

Glanville’s chat with Bikel also revealed that many people had told her she was lucky she did not have a prenup at the time of her divorce, but she actually felt that she would have gotten a lot more if she did have one.

Cibrian, Rimes, and Glanville recently made their peace after many years, reportedly for the sake of the shared children in both families.

This prompted us to do some digging to see what little (not so little anymore) Mason and Jake look like now and we were stunned! Here they are featured on their dad's Instagram account just last year. Looking so grown up and clearly having inherited their parents' good looks!

Mason is now seventeen years old, and his younger brother Jake is 13. Die hard RHOBH fans will remember the kids appearing on the reality show briefly before their father asked that they don't.

Cibrian and Glanville divorced back in 2010 after just nine years of marriage when Brandi discovered that the actor had been having an affair with country star singer LeAnn Rimes. Rimes and Cibrian tied the knot in 2011 and have been married ever since. After a ton of divorce drama, it appears as though the couples have put their differences aside for the kids. Just a couple of years ago, Glanville shared a selfie with LeAnn on her Instagram account, which utterly blew people's minds.

It is clear that this blended family is putting the children first! ■
